

REACH Siem Reap

Support a Wellbeing Program for Marginalized Kids

$6,250

Living in abject poverty brings with it a whole series of domestic and social issues which can have a serious impact on the both the mental health and behaviors of those children living within it. Our wellbeing program aims to tackle many of these symptoms by providing a full-time counsellor employed to provide remedial measures when required, as well as giving workshops to all staff on how to interpret different child behaviors and arm them with a range of methods to deploy to minimize disruption in the classroom, and at the same time help the student in question.

