

Make A Difference

A Sustainable School Chicken Farm Project

Description

Every morning, hundreds of our students arrive eager to learn — but on empty stomachs. Hunger is one of the most consistent barriers to learning we see in our schools. Your gift funds a complete school chicken farm: a coop, quality hens, and hands-on setup and training for students and teachers. From the very first weeks, the farm produces a daily supply of fresh, protein-rich eggs for a school breakfast program — nourishing between 200 and 350 students with the nutrition they need to actually absorb what they're being taught.

Your Impact

Between 200 and 350 students receive a protein-rich breakfast every school day — and the difference in focus and energy in the classroom is immediate. Surplus eggs are sold to the local community, generating income for the school from the outset. Within approximately one year, that income fully covers feed and maintenance, making the farm completely self-sustaining without any further donor support. Students gain hands-on agricultural training with skills they can take home and apply directly to their own families' food security. The school gains a permanent revenue stream that funds supplies, materials, and future programs. This is BFT's sustainable development model in its purest form: one gift that feeds children, trains them, and eventually pays for itself — permanently.
